Miami University announces new "Miami in D.C." Alumni Advisory Board

Miami University has formed an inaugural "Miami in D.C." Alumni Advisory Board.

The board will work with academic leadership in the College of Arts and Science and the departments of political science, and media, journalism & film to strengthen existing academic programs in the region, such as Inside Washington. The board also will develop new academic opportunities for Miami students seeking experience in the nation's capital.

Board members will serve four-year terms and include prominent alumni in the fields of politics, media, government, lobbying and public policy, among others.

Inaugural board members include:

- Rep. Susan Brooks '82, Republican representative for a congressional district in Indiana.
- LaDavia Drane '04, director of African American Outreach, Hillary Clinton's presidential campaign (assumes role in June 2015).
- Shefali Razdan Duggal '93, member, Democratic National Committee's national finance committee.
- Justin Faulb '05, assistant general counsel, National Association of Broadcasters.
- Jeff Pegues '92, justice and homeland security correspondent, CBS News.
- Steve Pinkos '92, partner, American Continental Group.
- Mike Sommers '97, chief of staff to House Speaker John Boehner.
- Katie Troller '08, manager, federal government relations, Walgreens.
- Darrell West '76, vice president of governance studies, director of the Center for Technology Innovation, Douglas Dillon Chair In Governance Studies, Brookings Institution.
